

Information Law Briefing

- Freedom of Information
- Data Protection
- Regulation of Investigatory Powers
- Human Rights
- Environmental Information Regulations
- Schedule 12A information

This course covers the basics of how the law relates to the information you hold and how you safeguard it and also release it.

How much does it cost?

£200 plus reasonable expenses when booked alongside a day's training. The briefing usually lasts 90 minutes.

Who can attend?

This is targeted at elected members or Directors of organisations. It sets out the corporate liabilities and recommends strategies for compliance.

Who's the trainer?

Paul Simpkins, previously Senior Policy Officer at Bradford Metropolitan Council with over 12 years of experience as a Data Protection Officer and 5 years of preparing for Freedom of Information Act.

He's also an examiner for the British Computer Society certificates in Data Protection & Freedom of Information and co-chair of the Yorkshire and Humberside Data Protection Forum.

He's spoken at conferences in Italy, Greece and is a regular speaker at conferences and courses on this subject in the UK

In the past he's been Chairman of the Board of Castle and Minster Credit Union and has also been a teacher and a lecturer in Business Studies and IT.

He's been delivering interesting and informative training for many years.

What do I do next?

Contact me by email at paulsimpkins@btinternet.com or see more at www.paulsimpkins.com

